reach Toledo at 6:30 and take a Lake Shore train out of Toledo shortly after 7 o'clock, reaching South Bend about 10:50 Sunday night.
Thus the party will be able to get a good night's rest and will be in good shape Monday morning to take up the business which is before them. The meeting will probably go into session at 10 o'clock Monday morning. It is likely that the real business of the meeting will not be taken up until Monday afternoon.

The committee has been unable to learn just what the Central league directors will demand of the Newark fans but it will not take long to learn this after a conference with the club owners and directors.

Manager Jack Martin of the Auditorium has offered to bring four good Keith vaudeville acts to Newark for four performances, two in the afternoon and two in the evening and donate 60 per cent of the gross receipts of the theatre to the baseball proposition. The idea is, if this plan is adopted, to issue tickets for the fans to sell in order to make the effort a success.

Mr. Martin will probably go to South Bend with the committee to help in the effort to land the Grand Rapids club for Newark.

The following is the schedule of games booked to be played at Grand Rapids:

South Bend—July 3, 4, 5.
Evansville—July 5, 6, 7.
Terra Haute—July 8, 9, 10.
Dayton—July 11, 12, 13.
St. Louis—July 14, 15, 16.
South Bend—August 1, 2, 3.
Zanesville—August 4, 5, 6.
Wheeling—August 1, 2, 3.
Evansville—August 8, 9, 10.
Terra Haute—August 11, 12, 13.
St. Louis—August 14, 15, 16.
Dayton—Sept. 1, 2, 3.

In the event that the team is transferred to Newark these games will be played in Newark. It will be noticed that South Bend is booked for two games July 4. The schedule yet to be played out includes games with every other club in the league, some of them making two trips.

At noon today W. B. Wingerter reported that $54.75 had been subscribed by employees of the Jewett Car Company as a guarantee to be posted in event the Grand Rapids franchise is secured in Newark. There were a number of departments to hear from and the sum will probably be increased to $75 before Monday.

The committee which were appointed to canvass the various shops will report at the meeting at the mayor's office tonight at 7:45 o'clock.

GRAND RAPIDS PITCHER HURT

While substituting in left field Wednesday Pitcher Bill Riley, Lima boy, who is with the Grand Rapids team in the Central league this season, fell and fractured his left elbow. He was chasing a fly ball. Riley is expected to return to his home in Lima to rest up until his injuries heal.

The Grand Rapids team returned home after an absence of three weeks. The game was as sorry as a football. Second Baseman McDonough being spiked and forced to retire and Riley receiving his injuries.

Although with a team that is near the bottom and one whose financial troubles have made it such that the players have had difficulty in securing their salaries, Riley has made a great record this year. Commenting upon his work the other day in the Gem City, the Dayton News says that Riley looks to be too good a pitcher to be with an outfit like Grand Rapids.

Detroit, June 24.—According to the statement of the men involved in the reported exchange of the St. Louis Browns and Detroit Tigers, Detroit fans have no immediate cause for alarm of losing their major league team.

President Navin says nothing in the way of a proposition to take the Tigers away has come to his notice. President Dan Johnson, who has just come out of the northern woods says there is no grounds for such a report and Col. Hodges, owner of the Browns, asserts the report is a joke.

A Charming Woman

Is one who is lovely in face, form, mind and temper. But it is hard for a woman to be charming without health. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always prove a godsend to people who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate stomach, liver and kidneys, purify the blood, give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion and perfect health. Try them. 50c. at F. D. Hall's.

SHORT SPORT

Wowsky. Indicating the puncture to the Athletics' tire in Culturetown yesterday.

Give Johnny Kling credit for one thing. He uncovered a good pitcher in Hub Purdie, who had been lying around the Boston camp waiting for a chance to shine. He held the Quakers to seven hits.

Ty Cobb, you have the greatness of the gentlemen—has not failed to hit safely in the last 33 games. Progressing somewhat.

Inquirer—Yes, Roger Bresnahan might be considered a hard loser.

After nine futile attempts this season, the Superbas finally slipped one over on the Giants. It was a lone run affair coming after two were out in the ninth.

Seven thousand dollar Walter Johnson, who used to be able to tell the Yankees what he was going to throw and still beat them, has lost the only two games he has pitched against them this year.

Little Joe Wood has won three games in the last week for the Red Sox, by his pitching and whaled out two home runs.

Jennings is exclaiming over the return to form of Ralph Wingerter, who yesterday held the Clevelanders to four hits.

Umpire Klem called a third strike on Cardinal Mowrey retiring St. Louis in the ninth and checking the rally that threatened to down Cincinnati. Bresnahan protested and Klem immediately put over a fourth strike, this one on Bresnahan's nose. Now more work for President Lynch.

New York fans are beginning to look upon Jack Quinn with the same feeling of safety they have when Ford is in the box.

Jimmy Barton of the Hamilton team has traded Shortstop Wentz to Springfield for Third Baseman Connell. It will be remembered that Connell was fined, and suspended by Manager O'Day because O'Day hit Connell in the head with a tumbler in a Chillicothe hotel. Connell refuses to play unless the fine is remitted.

Manager Osborne of the Lima aggregation says he will not return from this trip with his team in last place. He is banking on taking falls out of the crippled Lanks, Babes and Mechanics and thinks that the dissension in the Springfield team will help him win there.

Emmett Riley of the Chillicothe team is recovering rapidly from his injury in which his thumb was broken. He will be back in the game within a few days. Packard the Columbus lad, is playing nice ball with the Babes and has been a big help to them in their difficulty.

A big shakeup in the Hamilton team is scheduled to take place in a few days. Portsmouth has also corralled a lot of new talent and it is said that Manager Pete Childs will hand out some cancelled meal tickets to a few of his crew soon.

Central league papers are carrying a story to the effect that Lefty Snyder has been placed on the market by Evansville. Zanesville is looking upon Snyder with longing eyes and would like to see him join the team of the "Y" city.

The Logan company has made a location on the Thos Chambers farm, one on Wesley Neighbourer and one on John Neighbourer, all six or seven miles southeast of Lima. Rigs have been loaded in.

TWO GAMES AT WEHRLE PARK SUNDAY

Amateur baseball will be the attraction at Wehrle Park Sunday afternoon during the absence of a professional club in Newark, when the B. & O. and Knights of St. John clubs meet in the first game of a double header. These two games should prove hummers as the clubs are evenly matched. This will be the first meeting of the Atherton and Heisey teams this season.

The Heisey team is composed of some of the best talent in the city and will give Tracy's aggregation a run for the money. Earl Allen will throw for Athertons and Chick Rarick for Heisey.

This marks the second meeting of the B. & O. and K. of St. J. this season, the former winning the game and the Knights intend to even up matters, with Jake Winters in the box. Culbertson, a former star in the Cleveland City league, will pitch for the B. & O. team.

First game starts at 1:30 and the second game immediately after. Indications are that all sides will have plenty of rooters.

SPRINGFIELD, 3; LANCASTER, 0.

Lancaster, June 24.—Both Longmore and Ashenfelder pitched good ball in yesterday's game. Nally's walk, Foley's sacrifice, hits by Kendall and O'Day and McKee's sacrifice fly brought in Springfield's two runs in the first. Wentz's walk, steal of second and Thrig's single brought the last one across. A catch by Kendall was the feature. Score: R. H. E. Springfield 3 2 0 0 0 0 0 1 3 5 2 Lancaster 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 6 2 Batteries—Ashenfelder and McKee; Longmore and Anderson. Umpire—Goehler.

MARION, 6; CHILLICOTHE, 3.

Chillicothe, June 24.—Marion hit McGraynor hard in the early part of the game, while Cooper had the Babes at his mercy until the ninth, but the rally was too small. Score: R. H. E. Marion 6 1 0 2 0 3 0 0 0 13 1 Chillicothe 3 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 3 7 3 Batteries—Cooper and Smith; McGraynor and Packard. Umpire—Truby.

LIMA, 8; PORTSMOUTH, 2.

Portsmouth, June 24.—Lima won an easy victory off the Champs Friday, Hartwig's offerings being hit at will. Although the Champs got to Donalds pretty severely, their bingles went for naught. Pitcher Ludwig, holdout on the Portsmouth roster, has again refused to join the team. He is playing ball in Indianapolis. Score: R. H. E. Portsmouth 2 1 0 0 0 1 0 0 2 6 2 Lima 8 1 0 2 0 2 0 0 3 16 1 Batteries—Hartwig and Beers; Donalds and Young. Umpire—Johnson.

PIQUA, 9; HAMILTON, 5.

Piqua, June 24.—Heavy hitting marked Piqua's first engagement with Hamilton yesterday. One three-sacker and three doubles put the home team well in the lead and gave it the same, 9 to 5. A catch by McConnell in the sixth was the fielding feature. Score: R. H. E. Hamilton 5 1 3 0 0 0 1 0 0 5 2 Piqua 9 1 0 2 0 0 0 2 0 15 2 Batteries—Brown, Jones and Kunkle; Goshorn and Blue. Umpires—Raphun and Pastorius.

A FEW 'CASCARETS' CURE CONSTIPATION

Pleasant, Gentle, Though the Most Effective Remedy in the World for Sluggish Bowels or a Lazy Liver.

In the old days phys was dreadful calomel, castor oil, salts or cathartics. And they were worse than they seemed, for they irritated the stomach and bowels. They acted much as pepper acts in the nostrils. They flooded the bowels with fluids. But those fluids were digestive juices. And a waste today means a lack tomorrow. You secured relief, but you were actually worse off than without it.

It's different with Cascarets. Their effect is the same as that of laxative foods, or exercise. They stimulate the bowels to natural action. No griping, no straining. They act as a bowel tonic.

The old way, too, was to take large doses of physic. People waited until the bowels were clogged. The new way is to take one Cascaret when you need it. Carry the box in your pocket or purse. Ward off the troubles instantly. The modern plan is to keep at your best. The old way wasted too many good hours. Get a 10 cent box of Cascarets now.

NEW GAME LAWS BEING PRINTED

The changes in the Ohio game law are few, but the most important are announced as follows by Chief Warden Speaks:

The open season for squirrel in Ohio is changed to September 15th to October 20th, with a limit of five for one day's bag.

A new law provides that "No person shall catch, kill or injure any fox from the 1st day of December to the 1st day of the following September, both inclusive."

Muskrat has been designated a game animal with an open season from January 1st to April 1st.

Raccoon has also been placed under the jurisdiction of the fish and game department with an open season from November 1st to March 1st. The law provides that muskrat and raccoon may be killed by the owner of property at any time except Sunday, when found injuring property.

The above were the only changes made.

A new edition of the fish and game laws in pamphlet form is being printed, and as soon as ready for distribution copies will be sent out.

Unfortunately for the entire fish and game work the Hunters' License Bill did not become a law. It passed the Senate without a dissenting vote, and was finally placed on the House calendar during the closing day. It never reached a vote, however, being tabled by an old legislative trick, thus enabling the members to avoid going on record, as a matter of fact, there were enough favorable votes to insure passage, but many of the members, although in favor of it, preferred to avoid going on record, if possible. It might be said that the prospects of the bill were greatly injured by the influence of farmers, after it was learned that the bill proposed a three years' closed season on quail, was doomed to defeat.

COOKED GAMES.

The Newark Grays will play a semi-pro team from Cincinnati in this city at the Wehrle Park grounds July 18, 19 and 20. The local team is practicing daily and expects to win at least two games from the visitors.

COMES A TIME

When Coffee Shows What It Has Been Doing.

"Of late years coffee has disagreed with me," writes a matron from Rome, N. Y.

"Its lightest punishment was to make me 'loggy' and dizzy, and it seemed to thicken up my blood."

"The heaviest was when it upset my stomach, completely destroying my appetite and making me nervous and irritable, and sent me to my bed. After one of these attacks, in which I nearly lost my life, I concluded to quit the coffee and try Postum."

"It went right to the spot! I found it not only a most palatable and refreshing beverage, but a food as well. All my ailments, the 'looseness' and dizziness, the unsatisfactory condition of my blood, my nervousness and irritability disappeared in short order, and my sorely afflicted stomach began quickly to recover. I began to rebuild and have steadily continued until now. I have a good appetite and am rejoicing in sound health which I owe to the use of Postum."

The event will be a prominent social function in the Hebrew society of the Forest City.

TEACHER OF DOMESTIC SCIENCE VISITS NEWARK

Miss Mary Moore Jones, of Cincinnati, a well known teacher of domestic science with many years' experience, is visiting Newark in the interest of the Fleischmann Company. Miss Jones has had wonderful success in all the cities she has visited. Her method is so easy and simple one can not help making the bread and rolls, buns and tea rings after seeing it done. Miss Jones has given lessons in the homes where ladies have kindly invited several of their neighbors and spent a profitable as well as an interesting morning or afternoon. These lessons are entirely free and Miss Jones will be glad to visit the ladies of Newark on their baking day and do the work, showing them how easily and quickly it can be done. Heart and Home Talks

by Barbara Boyd

In Cupid's Realm.

The Successful Wife.

THE French say that the successful wife is the one who constantly renews herself. Each new day is a new person.

Provided this daily new person is always charming, it's rather a good definition, isn't it? The woman who each time you meet her, shows a different side of her character, and this side charming, is a delight. And as a wife, such a person is a constant joy.

Life is so generally monotonous that the one who can throw some variety into it is welcome. The husband who can look forward to a wife who at the breakfast table, or when he comes home at night is always different, yet always charming, has an attraction in his home that nothing elsewhere can rival. The woman who can play this role will indeed be a successful wife.

You know exactly what some people will do when you meet them. You know that they will talk about, even their little mannerisms of conversation. You know how they will greet you, how they will say good-bye. You can guess fairly well the style of their clothes. They give you no sense of surprise, no exhilaration. They are wearisome.

Some wives are like this. They think, when they marry, that now their lives are completed, and they settle down to a routine existence. You can guess for years to come just how they will say good-morning, the remarks at the breakfast table about the coffee or the butter or the steak, the things they will say to the children when they start for school, their greetings to their husbands on their return from business at night. They never exert themselves to think up something new or to be something different. Usually, they are good housekeepers, and they think their husbands ought to be satisfied with this. The monotony, the tameness, the deadly dullness of their home never seems to strike them.

There is a difference between constantly renewing one's self and being a person of moods. To renew one's self is to go to the fountain head of one's personality for fresh supplies of sunniness, alertness, enthusiasm, coquetry, whimsicality. It is always to have the one mood of delight and joy in life, but to express it differently. Such a person adds zest to the life of those about her. She starts the day brightly for her husband, and the thought of the radiance awaiting him quickens his footsteps at night.

But to be a person of moods is different. The husband who never knows whether he will find a sullen wife, an ill-natured wife, a worn-out wife, feels no more desire to hurry home than does the one whose wife is always monotonously the same.

The French are wise in these matters, and the recipe they give for a successful wife is one worth putting into practice.

TEACHINGS OF THE REVEALER READ IN COURT

Chicago, June 24.—If Evelyn Arthur See is sent to state's prison for contributing to the juvenile delinquency of Mildred Bridges, 17, the plant looking high mindedness of the cult of the absolute life, it is declared today he will have been cleared out of his own mouth.

For three days Mildred Bridges sat in the witness chair and defiantly withstood every attempt of the state to make her admit that See's religious teachings were immoral. She had woven a cloak of holy sanctity about her mentor, "the God man" she had called him. Assistant State Attorney Burnham had asked her if the laws of absolute life transcended the laws of state.

"No Evelyn taught us that when the law of the state conflicted with the laws of absolute life the laws of the state were to be supreme," chanted the child in the language of the book, "Absolute Life on Trial" which the state charges See wrote to drill his witnesses what to say on the stand.

Then Burnham took the stand himself and read from "Manuscript No. 13" of the "Book of Truth."

Before the prosecutor had read a hundred words he seemed to have broken down the whole story the girl so skillfully had told. With deliberately timed phrases, he read:

"In my house ye shall not be governed by the Bible; man can make his own laws when he has been purified and transcended the world. Each man becomes a law unto himself, each woman becomes a law unto herself."

Then Burnham read more and more from "manuscript 13." The extracts he read were of a revelation, not of a religious doctrine but of the manner in which See wrought upon his girl followers with seneous philosophy.

"It is," shouted the prosecutor, the most palpable plea for free love, disguised by the cloak of religion that human ever read." The text is unprintable. See, jubilant at the showing Mildred Bridges had made on the stand was cast down when Burnham read, with scorn the "Teachings of the Revealer."

Recipes for June 25, 1911.

A Fruit Salad. Half fill a dish with ripe cherries, strawberries, sliced peaches and bananas, then fill up the dish with wine or lemon jelly made with powdered gelatine. Set in a cool place till firm, then heap whipped and sweetened cream on the top and decorate with cherries, strawberries and sliced peaches.

Vanilla Snaps. Cream well together one and one-quarter cupfuls of butter and the same amount of sugar. Add three eggs well beaten, then stir in alternately one-half of a cupful of milk and three and quarter cupfuls of sifted flour. Flavor with two teaspoonfuls of vanilla beat for a moment, put in a pastry bag and press out in rings on greased baking sheets. Bake in a moderate oven.

HAD SALT-RHEUM FOR MANY YEARS

Doctors Failed to Cure Him—Goodrich Soap Did the Work in Three Days.

"For a long time I have suffered and been annoyed with a breaking out on the back of my head. I made the doctors call it salt rheum. My hands were in such an awful condition I was ashamed to leave them seen, and I did not have a pair of old gloves on I would keep my hands in my pockets to prevent making a scene. Goodrich Soap cured me in three days. I wrote a good number of letters with it and a good number of them were in the city. I gave me two little cups of Goodrich Soap, requiring me to try it. The first application of the latter of this wonderful Soap gave me relief and in three days time my hands were entirely well."

Among the Mexican Revolutionists

By EDWIN V. CHASE
Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Mexico being in the throes of revolution, I was sent down there on secret service duty for the United States government. In order that I might be properly armed with an introduction to whomsoever I needed to consult I was given a letter addressed "To whom it may concern" stating that I was an official of the United States sent to Mexico to gather information on the political condition of the country that would serve as a basis for any action the government might take in the premises.

Since an American was liable to be hated and suspected, especially by the revolutionists, I had no desire to fall into their hands with such a document on my person. I had asked to have it written on thin paper and occupying no great space in order that I might the better conceal it in case of necessity. I thought over many places of keeping it, but finally decided to put it in one of the little chest pockets of my waistcoat.

I entered the state or province of Chihuahua, which was in the hands of the revolutionists, pretending to favor their cause. After learning all I could in this district I entered the next on the east, Coahuila, which I found neither in the possession of the Mexican government nor the rebels, but in a state of anarchy. Falling into the hands of a small band of insurgents, I was arrested as an American resident and spy. I managed to save my neck by confessing that I was in the secret service not of the United States government, but of Madero. This secured me excellent treatment, and I was suffered to depart for Nuevo Leon, the next eastern province and in the hands of the Diaz forces. In this province is Monterey, where the battle of that name was fought during our war with Mexico.

At Monterey I presented my letter to whomsoever I thought would aid me and received information that was at least reliable. From Monterey, moving southward, I entered San Luis Potosi, in the same state of disorder as Coahuila. Here I was in constant dread of being known or considered as a spy of the United States government by roving bands of insurgents.

Entering the house of a leader of one of these bands, I found it necessary to pretend to be an ardent rebel sympathizer. This pleased Signor Molina, in whose house I was, and he treated me royally till along came a man whom I had met in Monterey. This man was a rebel and evidently remembered me and that I was, when he first met me, consorting with the Diaz people.

Outwardly Molina did not change his treatment of me except to be more scrupulously polite, but I knew I was under suspicion, and this in a province where there was no law was dangerous. At any rate, I felt that if the letter I bore were found I would be treated as a spy on the revolutionary forces and according to the fancy of those in whose hands I happened to be.

I told Molina that I thought I would go on, but he invited me to remain longer with him in such pressing terms that I knew he would not suffer me to depart without being better satisfied concerning me. I began to consider myself in great danger. If the letter I carried were found on me I would surely be considered as a spy on the movements of the revolutionists.

I tried to get rid of Molina long enough to destroy it, but he would not suffer me to go out of his sight. Not caring to let him see that I understood his purpose, I made no opposition to his keeping me with him.

Realizing that I was in for a serious business, I concluded to play a bold game. I began to tell my jailer host real or imaginary happenings to convince him that I was not only a sympathizer with the revolution, but was engaged in secret service work for the revolutionists. Such information as I could give him without breach of confidence concerning the government forces I told him as a great secret. The ruse evidently had no effect upon him.

Indeed, it seemed to make him all the more suspicious of me. At last, throwing off all disguise, he looked me steadily in the eye and said: "Who you are I don't know, except that you are an American, and the Americans who live here we hate. One thing I know—you have been at Monterey hand in glove with the Diaz forces."

I laughed outright. "Of course I have been hand in glove with them. Why should I not have been? How can I get their secrets without first gaining their confidence? Come, Signor Molina, let us have a smoke."

Producing a cigar, I handed it to him. He accepted it, and for the moment I had restored confidence. "Have you a match?" I asked. He had not a match. If he had I should have been shot for a spy.

I arose from my chair and looked about for a light. It was the spring season, and since a norther was blowing the room was warmed by a stove. Going to it, I opened the door, fumbled in my pockets for a bit of paper, took out my letter, twisted it touched it to a flame and lit my cigar with it.

I was just in time. Half an hour later I was searched for incriminating papers. None were found, and I went free.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Diet if Bilious.
The question of diet is all important to the person prone to biliousness. When the liver is secreting an excess of bile it is a certain indication that the albumen in the dietary is beyond
the body's requirements and should be lessened. This is seen from the demonstrated fact that the bile itself is produced from albuminoids and that with reduction of albumen the secretion
of bile is correspondingly reduced.

POSTOFFICE DEPARTMENT EXPOSURES

One of the features of the Taft administration that was to be advertised in the 1912 campaign was the economical administration by Postmaster General Hitchcock, the man who proved to be the champion vote
getter when g. o. p. workers were bustling to control the 1908 Republican convention.

The Congressional investigating committee on expenditures in the Postoffice department, of which Representative Wm. A. Ashbrook is chairman, recently landed pretty hard on this economy campaign plan.

Mr. Hitchcock's economy took the form of $35 waste paper baskets, $298
desks and $320 tables in furnishing two rooms in his office. There were Cir-cassian walnut furnishings. Specially designed carpets and draperies furnished the nucleus of the expenditures
for re-furnishing the postmaster general's private office.

Farmers and workmen, your money was used to fit out these regal apartments for Hitchcock. The money was wasted. Furthermore, all supplies were bought without subjecting the lucky dealer to competition.

Here is some more of the Hitchcock
economy: Two mahogany davenport
were purchased at a cost of $540;
three hundred and thirty dollars
bought in two arm chairs; $98 produced the table; $295 obtained a second desk, and $160 a third.

A wardrobe to hang the coats of the postmaster general on cost $265. A rug cost his feet on cost $483.75. Another davenport in Circassian walnut

FACTS AS TO COMING PRIMARY ELECTIONS

Will be Held September 5---Petitions of Candidates
Must be Filed by August 6.

The primary elections of both political parties are held on the same day.

The primaries this year will be held on Tuesday,
September 5.

All petitions of candidates for the primaries must be filed with the Board of Elections by August 6.

This is the ruling which has been sent out by the Attorney General.

Persons who desire to have their names on the primary ballot must have their petitions signed and filed by that time.

Petitions of candidates must contain signatures
equal to 2 per cent of the party vote in county, municipality, township or ward.

Many newspapers printed the names of all the signers to the petitions of local candidates last year and the year previous, and they doubtless will do the same this year.

The Advocate will publish the names of the signatures to petitions of candidates for city offices and also for delegate to the Constitutional Convention.

with pillow cost Uncle Sam $365.
Draperies in one room alone cost $600.
Flooring in one room cost $282. A telephone table was installed at a cost of $64, and a bookcase at an expenditure of $195. It cost the people $352 just to scrape the woodwork in the private office preparatory to a new finish.

These are only a few samples of further developments that are coming.

That voucher for the portrait of Justice Day has already involved more or less two Presidents, three Secretaries of State, two chief clerks of the department and various clerks and messengers. It has developed the extraordinary fact that papers leave the files of the department for five years
and then are nabbed as they are crawling across the floor to a waste basket.
And still a committee of Congress has not yet found out what $1600 was spent
for or why it was concealed in a pretended payment of $2,450. Sixteen hundred dollars never created so much disturbance in high official circles before.

Nearing Harvest Time.

By the end of the current month the country southwest of the Missouri and west of the Mississippi will have a marketable supply of new wheat aggregating 180,000,000 bushels, out of a total indicated winter crop of 480,000,000
bushels, writes the Columbus Journal.

Estimates of yield from crop experts places the Kansas crop at rather widely differing figures. Kansas has an enormous area of nearly 3,000,000 acres. Cutting and threshing have gone forward so rapidly that it is accepted
as certain that Kansas wheat will be in primary markets before July 1. New wheat is being offered generally for immediate shipment from points south
of the Missouri at this date.

THE TIRED OPTIMIST.

I said: "I'll sing a cheery song, and keep it up the whole day long; though every hour may troubles bring, I'll drive them off, and sing, and sing!" And so I warbled as I went, till neighbors came in discontent, and cried: "For heaven's sake, let up! You're squawking like a poisoned weep, until the babies cannot sleep, and mothers grit their teeth and wup. Your voice is like a guinea hen's; then why disturb these quiet glens, and shatter all the window glasses, and scare the horses as they pass? The modest workman does his chores, and never yells, and never roars; he does not whinny like a shoat, or bellow like an angry goat; he does not like a rooster crow, and fill the neighborhood with woe." And still I sing my joyous lay, while bricks and boots and bales of hay, and long-dead cats, and loaves of bread,
and fossil bones whiz past my head.

MAN THOUGHT TO HAVE SUICIDED IS ALIVE AND WELL

Newark relatives of John Gault, who was believed to have committed suicide
on a railroad bridge near Pittsburg
several weeks ago, have received word
that the man is alive and well, thus exploding the theory of suicide.

It will be remembered that an unknown man was seen on the railroad
bridge over the river near Pittsburg,
acting strangely. Later his clothing was found in the water at a point below the bridge and it was believed that he jumped into the water with suicidal intent.

However, his body was never found
and Licking county relatives identified
the clothing by means of certain letters and papers in the pockets of the young man's clothing.

Friday a letter was received by Newark relatives from the young man's sister, who stated that she had received a card from Gault at a point in the East and that he was very much alive and well, and would write more extensively of his travels later.

THE POULTRY YARD.

Very often the prettiest hen is the poorest layer.

Lawn clippings make an ideal summer green-food ration.

Lighter foods are best these warm days. Heavy food like corn heats the blood.

All the old stock that is not wanted
should now be disposed of before they go into molt.

Eat some of the eggs yourself. If they are worth money to anybody,
they are to you.

Already the fowls are assuming a rusty appearance. It is getting near their molting season.

The hen that lays where she happens to be, when she takes the notion
to lay, is certainly setting a bad example.

Do not let up in your warfare against the destructive house army. Lice are working havoc, and too severe measures can not be adopted to destroy them.

Use the small eggs. Give your customers the large ones. So shall they call you a square dealer and stick by you and bring you more and more customers. Besides, it's only fair and makes you feel better.

Makes us laugh when the old rooster finds a worm and cackles over it till he gets all the hens in the yard
around him and then just gobbles the worm up himself; but isn't that about what lots of folks do?

The growing cockerels should now
be separated from the pullets, and the former given an extra allowance of food. They will need this additional amount more than will the pullets in order that they can be kept growing.

TARIFF CHANGES SEEM PROBABLE

Many Republican Senators
Threaten Retaliation.

WILL SOON HAVE A CHANGE.

Free List Bill and the Wool Schedule
Will Show Whether or Not They Will Stand Up to Be Counted—Republican Opponents of Reciprocity
Bill Are in a Fighting Mood.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, June 24.—[Special.]—
Will those Republicans who have declared so emphatically that they will vote for tariff reductions stand up and be counted when the free list bill and
the wool schedule reach the senate?
If those who say they will retaliate
on the protected industries because the representatives of protected states are putting through the Canadian reciprocity
bill there is a possibility of quite an extensive revision of the tariff at the present session and the regular session next winter.

It did not take a very long discussion of the Canadian bill to show that the Republican opponents of that measure are decidedly sore and in a fighting mood. They showed that they felt they were being sacrificed and they were ready to abandon the protection principle in order to get even. If they do not change their minds the country
may expect a general lowering of tariff duties.

Peril of Precedent?

As Champ Clark seems to loom large
upon the presidential horizon here
come the fellows with precedents to show that he does not stand much of a chance. "Only one speaker of the house has ever become president," they say, as if that settled it. "Blaine, Reed and others failed," they assert,
not forgetting Henry Clay.

Now, it is a curious fact that precedent was against the election of Taft.
Not since 1825 had a member of the cabinet been nominated for president.
In fact, none of the men elected in that time had ever held cabinet positions. And yet Taft overcame the precedents. Roosevelt smashed precedents,
and Champ Clark may do the same.

Canny Willis Moore.

They did not catch Willis Moore,
chief of the weather bureau, making
any wild predictions of weather conditions on the silver wedding anniversary of the Tafts. Two years ago he predicted fine weather for the inauguration and was caught in a disastrous blizzard—a "fareback," the weather men called it. No more of that for Moore.

President Taft was anxious for good weather for his big party and had the bureau telephoned frequently, but the most he could get out of it was "unsettled." The weather was really ideal, though somewhat threatening. Moore
wasn't going to take any more risks.

Had Them in "Whites."

Mrs. Taft certainly made a great hit
when she requested that all the army
and navy officers attending the silver wedding party should appear in their white uniforms. It added very much to the picturesque feature of the evening and made the military side of the entertainment much more brilliant.
Mrs. Taft, an officer explained, wanted
the occasion to look as much like the Philippines as possible.

A Curious Condition.

A situation so marvelous that senators of long experience like Gallinger
and Penrose commented upon it arose
in the senate. There was no one ready or willing to talk. Where be the senators of yesterday? In days gone by when the oldsters were youngsters
there were Stewart, Call, Teller, Allen, Peffer and a dozen others who were willing to "fill in the gaps," as Gallinger expressed it.

But for a time when the Canadian bill was taken up it seemed as if the senate's long suit, conversation, was disabled. But it was not for long.
Brave men, willing to sacrifice themselves rather than that the senate
should lose its famous reputation, came forward, and language flowed freely.

Cannot Force Them.

Everybody is aware that if there is ever a vote on the bill for service pensions, which will add about $45,000,000
to the pension roll, it will go through the house with a big majority. But the house leaders do not want that pension bill passed, and so far they have been able to stave off a vote. The leaders have shown that they will do about what they want to do and will not be forced to that which they do not want. Several times the Republicans have maneuvered to "put them in bad," but they have carefully
sidestepped.

Bailey Offers Battle.

Senator Bailey of Texas has always been ready to meet any man in debate
in the senate. When Spooner was there he was ready for a battle with the little giant of Wisconsin. It has always been asserted that Senator Bailey is one of the great intellects of the present day, and ever since the New Yorker entered the senate Bailey has shown a readiness to enter the lists with Root. Of late Bailey has shown a real eagerness to engage Root
in a senate battle either upon constitutional questions, legal questions or,
more especially, the tariff. Bailey has
that supreme confidence in himself
which makes him aggressive.

CITY GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION

Originated in Galveston Eleven Years Ago.

RESULT OF GREAT FLOOD.

How It Rebuilt the Town, Constructed
the Sea Wall, Restored Credit and Scored Such a Success That It Is Now Spreading Throughout the Land.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

Americans are long suffering under abuses, but when the limit is reached
they go after the evil without gloves.
Our municipal governments present a case in point. For generations we have stood their rottenness, inefficiency, grafting and disgrace. Now they are becoming so bad we can put up with them no longer. The result is that we are eradicating the old system root and branch and substituting therefor the commission plan of government. The old scheme had got past the mending point. It had become honeycombed with ward and partisan politics. To ourselves it was a reproach, to other nations a standing joke. It was a combination of Tammany and Hinky Dink. The exposures in St. Louis, San Francisco, Pittsburg and elsewhere only scratched the surface. It was time for a new deal, and the new deal has come.
Now the cities of the entire land are falling over each other in their haste
to try on the commission system.
Wherever inaugurated it has worked
like a charm. Everybody is happy
over it except the professional politicians and the grafters.

The commission form of government
in America is only a trifle more than ten years old. It started in 1900 as a result of the Galveston flood. Sostaggering was the catastrophe that the old form of government was unable to meet the crisis. Alderman McMaster proposed that the council resign in a body and call in business men and experts to deal with the extraordinary situation. This was done. A commission of five was formed, two of them
elected by the people and three appointed by the governor. Afterward
the supreme court decided that the governor had no right to appoint, and all the commissioners were elected.

Prior to the hurricane and tidal wave
that so nearly swept her off the map
Galveston had the usual discouraging
history of municipal misgovernment.
As a result she was in debt, her bonds
were below par and her treasury on the verge of bankruptcy. Under the commission system the city was rebuilt, the grade raised several feet,
the streets repaved, a retaining sea wall
constructed, the debt cut down, expenditures kept within the revenues,
city employees paid in cash, bonds
brought to a premium, streets kept cleaner, sanitation improved, saloons
kept out of the residence districts, public buildings from the city hall, public
gambling abolished, civic spirit awakened and a condition of harmony and prosperity begun such as Galveston had never before known. In other words, the new government did better in the face of the calamity than the old had done in times of tranquility. One most significant fact is that, despite the expenditures required to rebuild, raise
and protect the city, the tax rate was kept down lower than that of any large city in Texas.

To show the contrast between the old Galveston government and the new, public improvements had stopped
under the former "ring rule" and
public buildings were deteriorating,
finances were going behind at an average of $100,000 every year, city employees, including even schoolteachers,
were paid in scrip, and the bosses, who were growing rich, had such a grip it was impossible to shake them loose.

All that is now changed. The floating debt has been retired, a sinking fund started, public improvements are going forward, bills are paid in cash
when due, and the political bosses
have become unpleasant memories.
That these and other beneficent results are due to the commission system of government is proved by the fact that other cities adopting the commission plan have had a like experience.

Under what came to be known as the Galveston plan each of the commissioners took charge of some branch of the city government. For this he was responsible to the commission as a whole and to the people. So successful was the system in the city of its origin that other municipalities in all parts of the land began to study it with interest.

To one who does not believe in universal panaceas and craves the working out of the commission form of government is little less than marvelous. It has agreeably surprised both its friends and enemies. Is it the long looked for solution of our municipal government problems? An unqualified affirmative answer is almost too good to be true, and it is too early to go that far, yet the more one studies what has actually been accomplished under the new system
the more enthusiastic he grows. My own prediction is that as soon as the bulk of American cities realize just what has been achieved in the commission towns there will be such a scramble to make the experiment for themselves that it will result in a virtual municipal revolution.

The Fountain Head of Life Is The Stomach

A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished.

DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY
makes the stomach strong, promotes the flow of digestive juices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and restorative nerve tonic. It makes men
strong in body, active in mind and cool in judgement.

This "Discovery" is a pure, glyceric extract of American medical roots, absolutely free from alcohol and all injurious, habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients are printed on its wrappers. It has no relationship with secret nourishments. Its every ingredient is endorsed by the leaders in all the schools of medicine. Don't accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this time-proven remedy or known composition. Ask your neighbors. They must know of many cures made by it during past 40 years, right in your own neighborhood.

RE-ELECTED AT AN INCREASED SALARY

Superintendent O. C. Larason, who is at the head of the Boys' Industrial School, at Lancaster, has been re-elected by the board having charge of this matter and his salary was increased $300 per year. The Ohio Teacher, an Athens publication, and the Ohio Educational Monthly, both speak very highly of Mr. Larason's work as head of this institution and the re-election and raise in salary is a substantial recognition of the board's appreciation of his work.

Mr. Larason is a Newark man and is father of the Clerk of Courts, Ed M. Larason.

TELEGRAPHIC TIPS

Pittsburg: Lawrence Campbell, an Englishman, yelled "God save the King," repeatedly in honor of the coronation. Patrolman O'Brien, Irishman, arrested Campbell. Magistrate Goettman, German, fined him $5.

Corvallis, Ore.: Governor Oswald West headed the pursuers that recaptured Jesse Hall, an escaped convict. It was through West's leniency that Hall escaped and the governor said he felt morally bound to aid in his capture.

Eatontown, N. J.: Dr. Homer T. Patters will not sign the death certificate of Mrs. Lynda Bethel of Beaufort, N. C., until the executor of her estate pays the woman who cared for Mrs. Bethel in her sickness.

New York: Mrs. Henry Hardy was so overjoyed at the return of her husband, Sergeant Hardy of the Coast artillery, from the Mexican border, that she died in a few hours of heart failure.

Waukegan, Ill.: Great mystery surrounds a $65,000 painting which Harold McCormick bought in Europe, has sealed in an immense tin can and shipped to his Forest Park home under an armed guard.

Chicago: Following the announcement that the Irish would crown St. Brendan as king of celebration during the "same Fourth" exploration, the Italians are up in arms over the alleged slight to C. Columbus.

Chicago: Amelia Rapp saved her money for four years to bring her sweetheart, George Kett, from Germany for their marriage. Now she will save money for his funeral expenses, Kett having been killed by a live wire.

GIDEON MEETING SUNDAY AFTERNOON AT TAYLOR HALL

All the arrangements are now complete for the big mass meeting to be held by the Gideons at Taylor hall, Sunday afternoon, and it is quite probable that the hall will be unable to accommodate all who will desire to attend the meeting. Many of the ministers of the city are expected to be present, as all have been invited to attend. Those attending will occupy seats upon the platform. There will be a number of excellent speakers in attendance, among them the Rev. C. J. Rose, secretary of the Ohio Baptist convention. Excellent music will also be furnished for the occasion, under the leadership of W. O. Miles of Columbus, who will render a number of solos and some of the best talent in the city will contribute to the enjoyment of the occasion. At the close of the meeting a large number of men will be given Bibles and they will march to each hotel in the city and place a Bible in each room.

The action of the Gideons, which is composed of traveling salesmen, in placing Bibles in the hotels of the country, is looked upon by all as one of the greatest movements in the interest of morality and righteousness ever inaugurated in this country, and is encouraged by the pulpit and the people alike.

NEWARK HEIRS PROVE IDENTITY TO CLINTON COURT
Clinton, Ill., June 24.—After living twelve years in ignorance of the fact that they had fallen heir to property, Mabel and Henry Thorpe of Newark, O., have at last been found by the local authorities here. A strange romance surrounds the case.
Twenty years ago Frank Thorpe, son of a wealthy farmer, wooed and won Mabel, daughter of a neighbor. The young couple moved to St. Louis, where a son and daughter were born. Misunderstandings resulted in a separation. The young husband returned to De Witt county.

Twelve years ago the elder Thorpe died. His wife gave sixty acres of land to each of his grandchildren. Three years ago the grandmother died. She also left property for the two. The father of the children died shortly afterwards, leaving additional property to them.

Two months ago James Thorpe, brother of Frank, learned from a relative in Milwaukee that the grandchildren were living in Newark. They were communicated with and came to Clinton and received the property. Miss Mabel is soon to be married.

Attorney B. F. McDonald, of this city, who is attorney for the Thorpe children, has succeeded in having their identity established in the courts of Illinois, and the guardian, Mr. James Thorpe, at Clinton, Ill., has been ordered to file his final account and settle up the estate by the fourth of July. There will be about $9000 in cash and $15,000 in real estate to be divided between the two heirs in this city. Henry C. Thorpe, and Mabel, who was married to a Mr. Redman a few days ago.

Fifth Street Baptist.
Sunday school at 9:30; preaching at 10:45; B. Y. P. U. at 6:30 o'clock, led by Mrs. Arthur Taylor; preaching at 7:30. The pulpit will be filled both morning and evening by Prof. C. L. Williams of Granville. On Friday evening, June 30, the choir will render a cantata entitled: "The Golden Legend" by Dudley Buck. This musical treat will be free to the public and everyone is cordially invited to each and all of these services.

First Church of Christ, Scientist.

and when I say cured, I mean just what I say—CURED—E.C.D. and not merely patched up for awhile, to return worse than before. Remember I make this broad statement after putting ten years of my time on this one disease and handling in the mean-time a quarter of a million cases of this dread disease. Now, I do not cure what I have used, nor how many doctors have told you that you could not cure—all I ask is just a chance to show you that I know what I am talking about. If you will write me TODAY, I will send you a FREE TRIAL of my mild, soothing, guaranteed cure that will convince you more in a day than for anyone else could in a month's time. If you are disgusted and discouraged, I dare you to give me a chance to prove my claims. By writing me to-day you will enjoy more real comfort than you had ever thought this world holds for you. Just try it and you will see I am telling you the truth.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—Of Course a Catbird Could Fool a Cat

Tabby Thought Her Kitten Was Calling Her

THERE was a great chattering of feathered folk in the cherry tree, and Evelyn and Jack, in their white nightdresses, poked their heads far out of the window to see what was the matter.

"To bed, all of you!" cried father, who had come in very quietly. "Tabby isn't going to steal any little birds at night. You forget Sheppie is chained right under the cherry tree at night, and where Sheppie is Tabby won't go."

"Oh, Tabby doesn't really care for birds either," hastily spoke Evelyn, anxious for Mrs. Tabby's good name. "She gets heaps to eat from Blah."

"I know some little birds whose nest Tabby will let alone after this," said daddy, smiling.

"Tell us about it, daddy," coaxed the children.

"Well, it was this morning when I got up. I was out trimming the vines, when I heard a great twittering among the lilacs. I looked around and saw Mrs. Tabby creeping nearer and nearer to the bushes, when a little gray bird came flying up. The minute the gray bird spied Tabby she set up a great chattering and hopped into the bushes.

"The little birds became quiet, but off by the clump of purple lilacs I heard a faint mew. You know how fond Tabby is of her kittens. She had left the three of them alone in the woodshed. Tabby mewed an answer to the little wail and made a bee line for the purple lilacs.

"Then the kitten's voice shifted to the honeysuckle vine by the front porch. Tabby followed it anxiously. The kitten then seemed to be in the rosebushes by the gate. After awhile it was over in the vacant lot. Tabby prowled around in search of the kitten wearing a heartbroken air. Just as she seemed about to give up in despair a little gray bird hopped into view and gave a decisive meow. A more surprised cat you never saw.

"She hustled right off to the woodshed, where her kittens were sleeping snug and warm, while the little gray bird flew right home to tell how cleverly she had taken in the stupid old cat."

"When Tab came into the house for breakfast she never cast an eye at the white lilac bush, where Mr. and Mrs. Gray Bird were amusing themselves imitating Mr. Robin's morning song.

"You want to watch those little birds. They are catbirds. Catbirds can imitate most anything in the woods."

Grass Was Burning.
A field of burning grass at Thirteenth and Church streets caused an alarm of fire from box 41 at noon Saturday. A pile of burning rubbish set fire to the dry grass in a field a area of more than an acre was burned over before the blaze was extinguished by the department. There was some danger to nearby buildings, but there was no loss.

Burning Old Cars.
A dozen or more condemned freight cars owned by the B. & O. R. C., which were being destroyed in the extreme east end of the yards, caused the fire department a long run Friday night about 8:30 o'clock. Some one seeing the light of the flames thought a big fire was in progress and called the department.

A NEW WAY FOR WOMEN.
The Monday washing is a small tragedy when performed by the old-fashioned method of "rub, rub, rub, rub" a while, and then rub. Science, by the production of a pure, clean, white laundry soap has evolved a much easier way—soaking the clothes with the help of H-witt's Easy Task soap. This is much quicker, lots easier and costs no more than the poor, old-fashioned kind. Five cents at your grocers.

It seems inconsistent, but the surest and best way to ascend steadily in this world is to keep on the level.

A man isn't much good unless he tries to deserve the good opinion he has of himself.

The fellow who spends his money before he gets it is apt to get it in the neck.

BY THE KING'S EDICT
By MARTHA L. WRIGHT
Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

As to the matter of Edmund Koyle, yeoman, who was sentenced to be hanged in the county of Kent, in the reign of King Edward IV., this is the story:

Koyle had just come of age, and there was a celebration in honor of the event on his father's farm. The young men and maidens danced on the green, and it was noticed that Edmund Koyle and Margaret Manning, a comely lass of nineteen years, danced many times together. Moreover, some who were there saw old Simon Winter standing by himself looking on at the couple, scowling and tapping his foot angrily on the floor, for he had that day applied to Farmer Manning for Margaret to wife, and now he saw that her heart was going out to Koyle.

That night the church was robbed of the silver service plate, and search being made, it was found hid in the barn on the farm to which young Koyle had the day before come to an inheritance, his father having died two years ago. And there were those who averred that they had seen Edmund carrying plunder from the church at dead of night.

So the young man was tried before the judge, and those persons who claimed that they had seen him carrying a load from the church swore to the fact, and Edmund was sentenced to be hanged by the neck till he was dead.

Edmund was defended before the judge by Montgomery, his advocate, in this wise:

"Most worshipful sir, there be a conspiracy on the part of Simon Winter to ruin my client, that the said Winter may put away a rival. This man, who has a farm and much cattle and sheep, did propose to Farmer Manning for his daughter, a comely wench, and the proposal was accepted by Farmer Manning."

"Then came the prisoner and on the day he was of age danced merrily with Margaret Manning, and Simon Winter, being jealous, did hire men for pay to rob the church and place the plate in Edmund Koyle's barn, that he might make it appear that the sacrilege had been done by Koyle, Winter having the intent to injure Koyle that he should cease to be a rival for the hand of Margaret Manning."

"Therefore, I pray you, most worshipful sir, to let my client go free, or if you are not satisfied of his innocence he will willingly decide whether he or Winter is guilty of this sacrilege by deadly combat."

But Winter, being no match for a young man, declined the combat, and the judge was constrained to pronounce the accused guilty and pass sentence upon him.

Then did Margaret, who was in the court, fall down in a swoon and was carried to her father's house.

When the day came that Edmund Koyle was to be executed the people in those parts came to see, some in wagons, some on foot and some on horseback, the women riding on pillows behind the men, so that a great crowd was collected. And there were present many friends of Koyle, who knew him to be innocent of the crime charged against him, and they murmured that he should be hanged for a crime he had not committed. Among the spectators sat Farmer Manning and his wife and between them Margaret, their daughter. And the people marvelled greatly to see a maiden sitting by the scaffold on which the man she loved was to suffer death. But near her sat Montgomery, who had spoken in Koyle's behalf before the magistrate. All looked for Simon Winter, wondering mayhap if he would venture to attend the execution. But he dare not come, fearing the people.

Then came forth Edmund Koyle, being pale of countenance, but walking with a firm step and head erect. Before the cap was put over his face he stepped to the front of the scaffold and spoke the words which all who are condemned to die may at the last moment say to the people. But all he spoke was that he was innocent.

Then when the executioner was about to make ready for the hanging Montgomery looked at Margaret, and she, rising in her seat, said to the sheriff:

"I claim this man in marriage."

The people marvelled, and the sheriff, paying no heed to Margaret's demand, told the executioner to proceed. But up stands Montgomery and cries out with a loud voice:

"I protest against the execution as illegal."

"In what respect?" asks the sheriff.

"There is an edict of our sovereign, King Edward IV., commanding that if a woman shall demand in marriage any man condemned to death he shall go free and be given to the woman."

And Montgomery took parchment to the sheriff and showed him the edict, and the sheriff read and ordered that the prisoner be given to Margaret.

Then all rose up and went to the church, consoled for not seeing a hanging by being given view of a wedding. But they were after all not satisfied without a hanging, and when Simon Winter came to see what was in the wind they made a rush for him, and, taking him to the scaffold, where all was in readiness for such a spectacle, they hanged him instead of his intended victim.

These things I have told not that I have heard them, but because I was present and saw them for myself.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

Of Course a Catbird Could Fool a Cat

THERE was a great chattering of feathered folk in the cherry tree, and Evelyn and Jack, in their white nightdresses, peered their heads far out of the window to see what was the matter.

"To bed, all of you!" cried father, who had come in very quietly. "Tabby isn't going to steal any little birds at night. You forget Sheppie is chained right under the cherry tree at night, and where Sheppie is Tabby won't go."

"Oh, Tabby doesn't really care for birds either," hastily spoke Evelyn, anxious for Mrs. Tabby's good name. "She gets heaps to eat from Dinah."

"I know some little birds whose nest Tabby will let alone after this," said daddy, smiling.

"Tell us about it, daddy," coaxed the children.

"Well, it was this morning when I got up. I was out trimming the vines, when I heard a great twittering among the lilacs. I looked around and saw Mrs. Tabby creeping nearer and nearer to the bushes, when a little gray bird came flying up. The minute the gray bird spied Tabby she set up a great chattering and hopped into the bushes.

"The little birds became quiet, but off by the clump of purple lilacs I heard a faint mewling. You know how fond Tabby is of her kittens. She had left the three of them alone in the woodshed. Tabby mewled an answer to the little wail and made a bee line for the purple lilacs.

"Then the kitten's voice shifted to the honeysuckle vine by the front porch. Tabby followed it anxiously. The kitten then seemed to be in the rosebushes by the gate. After awhile it was over in the vacant lots. Tabby prowled around in search of the kitten wearing a heartbroken air. Just as she seemed about to give up in despair a little gray bird hopped into view and gave a derisive meow. A more surprised cat you never saw.

"She hustled right off to the woodshed, where her kittens were sleeping snug and warm, while the little gray bird flew right home to tell how cleverly she had taken in the stupid old cat.

"When Tab came into the house for breakfast she never cast an eye at the white lilac bush, where Mr. and Mrs. Gray Bird were amusing themselves imitating Mr. Robin's morning song.

"You want to watch those little birds. They are catbirds. Catbirds can imitate most anything in the woods."

ABE MARTIN SAYS:

FOUR ESSENTIALS.
Four things a man must learn to do

If he would keep his record true: To think without confusion clearly;

To love his fellow men sincerely;

To act from honest motives pure;

To trust in God and heaven securely.

BY THE KING'S EDICT

By MARTHA L. WRIGHT
Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

As to the matter of Edmond Koyle, yeoman, who was sentenced to be hanged in the county of Kent, in the reign of King Edward IV., this is the story:

Koyle had just come of age, and there was a celebration in honor of the event on his father's farm. The young men and maidens danced on the green, and it was noticed that Edmond Koyle and Margaret Manning, a comely lass of nineteen years, danced many times together. Moreover, some who were there saw old Simon Winter standing by himself looking on at the couple, scowling and tapping his foot angrily on the floor, for he had that day applied to Farmer Manning for Margaret to wife, and now he saw that her heart was going out to Koyle.

That night the church was robbed of the silver service plate, and search being made, it was found hid in the barn on the farm to which young Koyle had the day before come to an inheritance, his father having died two years ago. And there were those who averred that they had seen Edmond carrying plunder from the church at dead of night.

So the young man was tried before the judge, and those persons who claimed that they had seen him carrying a load from the church swore to the fact, and Edmond was sentenced to be hanged by the neck till he was dead.

Edmond was defended before the judge by Montgomery, his advocate, in this wise:

"Most worshipful sir, there be a conspiracy on the part of Simon Winter to ruin my client, that the said Winter may put away a rival. This man, who has a farm and much cattle and sheep, did propose to Farmer Manning for his daughter, a comely wench, and the proposal was accepted by Farmer Manning."

"Then came the prisoner and on the day he was of age danced merrily with Margaret Manning, and Simon Winter, being jealous, did hire men for pay to rob the church and place the plate in Edmond Koyle's barn, that he might make it appear that the sacrilege had been done by Koyle, Winter having the intent to injure Koyle that he should cease to be a rival for the hand of Margaret Manning."

"Therefore, I pray you, most worshipful sir, to let my client go free, or if you are not satisfied of his innocence he will willingly decide whether he or Winter is guilty of this sacrilege by deadly combat."

But Winter, being no match for a young man, declined the combat, and the judge was constrained to pronounce the accused guilty and pass sentence upon him.

Then did Margaret, who was in the court, fall down in a swoon and was carried to her father's house.

When the day came that Edmond Koyle was to be executed the people in those parts came to see, some in wagons, some on foot and some on horseback, the women riding on pillows behind the men, so that a great crowd was collected. And there were present many friends of Koyle, who knew him to be innocent of the crime charged against him, and they murmured that he should be hanged for a crime he had not committed. Among the spectators sat Farmer Manning and his wife and between them Margaret, their daughter. And the people marvelled greatly to see a maiden sitting by the scaffold on which the man she loved was to suffer death. But near her sat Montgomery, who had spoken in Koyle's behalf before the magistrate. All looked for Simon Winter, wondering maybe if he would venture to attend the execution.

Then came forth Edmond Koyle, being pale of countenance, but walking with a firm step and head erect. Before the cap was put over his face he stepped to the front of the scaffold and spoke the words which all who are condemned to die may at the last moment say to the people. But all he spoke was that he was innocent.

Then when the executioner was about to make ready for the hanging Montgomery looked at Margaret, and she, rising in her seat, said to the sheriff:

"I claim this man in marriage."

The people marveled, and the sheriff, paying no heed to Margaret's demand, told the executioner to proceed. But up stands Montgomery and cries out with a loud voice:

"I protest against the execution as illegal."

"In what respect?" asks the sheriff.

"There is an edict of our sovereign, King Edward IV., commanding that if a woman shall demand in marriage any man condemned to death he shall go free and be given to the woman."

And Montgomery took parchment to the sheriff and showed him the edict, and the sheriff read and ordered that the prisoner be given to Margaret.

Then all rose up and went to the church, consoled for not seeing a hanging by being given view of a wedding. But they were after all not satisfied without a hanging, and when Simon Winter came to see what was in the wind they made a rush for him, and, taking him to the scaffold, where all was in readiness for such a spectacle, they hanged him instead of his intended victim.

These things I have told not that I have heard them, but because I was present and saw them for myself.

PACES A HALF MILE IN 1:01 1/2 AT A MATINEE
Marysville, O., June 24.—Banner B., owned by Howard Chapsdale, of Ostrander, lowered the track record of 1:05 for a half mile here and also lowered his own record of 1:02 1-4, pacing a half mile in the remarkably fast time of 1:01 1-2. This is said to be the world's record this year for a matinee pacer. A large crowd of spectators witnessed the event. Five races were also pulled off by the Marysville Matinee Club.

DIEGEL TRIAL

for 25 years has a jury in a criminal case in Franklin county been kept together throughout the trial. The jury is quartered at the Southern. Amusement will be provided for over Sunday.

Present indications do not warrant any hope that the 12 men can consider the case before the middle of next week. The defense has been joined by another attorney, C. W. Eliff of Dayton, personal counsel for Senator George K. Cetohe. He is not taking an active part in the present case.

The defense insisted at the opening of the afternoon session that it had the right to cross-examine Smiley as to his statement made just before noon, that he pleaded guilty to mere technical charge in the Unge-Brown-Diefenbach conspiracy case in Chicago 10 years ago. The jury was sent out during arguments.

Belcher stated the defense would be able to show that Smiley escaped punishment because he turned state's evidence. He declared he was first arrested as an accessory to the murder of Miss Diefenbach. Belcher insisted the explanation that the plea of guilty was merely technical be stricken out, unless the defense be permitted to cross-examine.

"Are we to be bound by the statements of a man who is not only a self-confessed swindler, but who may be a murderer as well," he asked, "and then not be permitted to question him?"

The court stated that he did not wish to baffle the issues.
The defense had what purported to be a complete record in the Smiley case, but it failed to show a sentence passed on Smiley. Prosecutor Turner insisted it was not a complete legal record by reason of the omission. The state's contention was that the technical plea was withdrawn and Smiley discharged.

Turner's contention angered Belcher, who charged the prosecution with raising a technical objection to protect what he termed a "self-confessed villain." He challenged the state for not having its own record in the Smiley case, inasmuch as he said it had been mentioned for weeks in the public press.

In connection with Smiley, it was said by his friends yesterday that it had been made to appear, through an error in the newspapers, that he was involved in a murder charge. That, they said, was not true in any way, as he was involved in a conspiracy charge, based on an insurance fraud.

In his opinion, Judge Kinkadee carefully reviewed rules of law in regard to former convictions of felony on the part of witnesses. He declared the present case peculiar and in many respects unlike any other case ever called to his attention.

Just before adjournment the state tried to have Smiley repeat that Barry was in room 317 at the Chittenden Hotel when the alleged bribe was given to Diegel, but was ruled out. The day closed with Smiley still on the stand.

SENTENCES OF MEN CONVICTED OF AN ASSAULT AT UTICA

In common pleas court Saturday morning the motion for a new trial in the case of Charles Ames and Wm. Colwell, convicted of assault and battery on Marshal Seth Warner of Utica, was overruled and Ames was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs and given ten days in the county jail. Colwell was fined $50 and costs and given five days in which to pay or settle up.

Immediately after the sentence had been passed, Attorney Russell and Fitzgibbon went to the council of Westminster City and at other points to accept addresses from local civic bodies.

Winston Spencer Churchill, as homo secretary, attended these cere-

placed at his disposal from Buckingham palace.

King George and Queen Mary showed themselves to the masses as distinct from the more favored classes who were able to obtain access to the circumscribed area of Thursday's pageant.

Yesterday's procession was on an even grander scale than that of the coronation. The route was more extended, including a circuit of some of the most populous districts of the capital, and the crowds that looked on were correspondingly greater. Then, too, their majesties were accompanied by a larger escort.

The procession began to form in the yard of Buckingham palace and the adjacent streets at 9 o'clock and two hours later it was under way. Between lines of cheering thousands the royal party made stately progress from Buckingham palace by way of Constitution Hill, Piccadilly, Trafalgar Square, through the city, over London bridge, by Borough road and Westminster bridge, thus making a complete circuit.

In the royal equipage with the king and queen rode Field Marshal Kitchener and the bearer of the royal standard. The royal escort brought up the rear.

Everywhere the king and queen received an uproarious welcome from the visitors in the hotels, from the stands of Piccadilly, Trafalgar Square and the Strand. From the business men of London proper, who had brought their wives and children to the city for this day, and again from their majesties' subjects south of the river.

South of the river every house, no matter how modest, had a place of bunting flying. The stands along the route certainly made a brighter appearance than Thursday. Those on Constitution Hill, overlooking the palace garden, were filled with uniformed officers from every part of the world, who had come to London to honor Britain's king with their dutifully deputed ladies.

St. George's Hospital, opposite Constitution Hill and the residences around Hyde Park corner and Piccadilly were hidden by stands occupied by a bevy of uniformed nurses side by side with men and women who had paid enormous prices for their seats.

The windows of Stratton House and seats on the roof were occupied by guests of special American Ambassador Hammond. They included the Duchess of Argyll, the special ambassador's staff in full uniform, members of the American embassy and many American women.

Almost exactly at the appointed hour the colonial and Indian contingents, which were to lead the way over the seven-mile route, formed on Victoria Embankment and proceeded up the Mall, past Buckingham palace to Constitution Hill and Hyde Park corner. It was a wonderful exhibition of soldiery and preceded the carriages, exhibiting all the cavalry uniforms of the empire.

For picturesque the Indian section, next in line, could not be excelled anywhere in the world. The Indian cavalry, in the most gorgeous silken uniforms and turbans, wearing medals won on the field of battle, preceded the carriages in which were the ruling Indian princes and potentates. The latter were fairly weighted down with jewels of enormous value. Their costumes, including turbans and tunies, were of every imaginable hue. They received a hearty reception, at which they were visibly pleased.

The royal procession was made up much as on Thursday, though somewhat longer, as it included many who before were in attendance at Westminster abbey.

The king wore a field marshal's uniform with a sash of the Order of the Garter.

The queen was dressed in white and wore a blue sash of the Order of the Garter. Her hat was plumed with ostrich feathers in two shades of blue. From end to end of the long route their majesties received a notably spontaneous and loyal welcome.

The procession stopped at Waterloo Place to receive an address from the council of Westminster City and at other points to accept addresses from local civic bodies.

Winston Spencer Churchill, as homo secretary, attended these ceremonies, accepting the address for the king and delivering to the king the reply which he was to make.

At Temple Bar there was a more elaborate ceremony. Here the lord mayor of London stood and the sheriff on horseback awaited the coming of their majesties and upon their arrival surrendered to the king the city's pearl sword.

As the sovereigns passed through the center of the city millions of lights arranged for illuminations simultaneously were turned on and the great crowd about the royal exchange redoubled its cheers.

On the other side of London bridge the king was in one of his many home districts, or rather his former home, for here as the Duke of Cornwall he was the largest ground landlord.

All through South London and back again through Westminster, Whitehall and the Mall to Buckingham Palace crowds filled the stands that lined the route and cheered heartily the appearance of their majesties.

The state banquet at the foreign office last night was one of the most important social events of coronation week. Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign minister and host of the occasion, received King George and Queen Mary, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Prince Arthur of Connaught, Princess Patricia, Prince and Princess Christian, the Duke and Duchess of Teck, the Duke and Duchess of Argyll, and all the foreign royal personages and the special representatives to the coronation, including John Hays Hammond, Rear Admiral Vredland and Major A. W. Greely, the American delegates.

Altogether 60 royal personages attended the function. The entire company numbered 150, among those present being various members of the royal household, attaches of the foreign office, the panel delegate, Monsignor Di Belmonte, Premier and Mrs. Asquith, the Duchess of Devonshire and the Countess Minto.

As a lad "Ben" Wilson, as he was known to all his friends throughout his life, attended the public schools at the Old Central school house and Sunday school at the Old First Presbyterian church. As a youth he graduated with honors from the Newark High school and later took an academic course at Cornell university, which he finished with credit to himself and his preceptors. Particularly happy was this young collegian in rhetoric and English composition. His theses and essays of student days already showed the bent of his mind's fancy which was later to crystallize into admirable accomplishment as a teacher and man of letters.

Leaving the university Mr. Wilson sought his métier in several different paths of endeavor. As a journalist he did creditable work on the New York Mail and Express when that excellent newspaper was in the heyday of its fame, and when a position upon its staff was esteemed an accolade of ability in the world of publicists. For a little time Mr. Wilson stepped aside from the profession of journalism to his twin avocation, the stage. But in the art of the actor he did not find his most congenial channel of expression and he returned for a time to newspaperdom and later for a brief season entered commercial life. But neither the selling of news and comment, nor the proving of commodities, though he proved apt enough at both, satisfied the ambitions of young Benjamin Wilson. His heart's hope was to become a man of letters, a writer of critique, essay, romance—the graceful art of expressing the thoughts that came to him adequately and perfectly in the language which Shakespeare found sufficient was the lure which baited his ambition.

To earn the leisure in which to practice this seductive art, to support himself while in surroundings grateful to his student disposition, Mr. Wilson seized an offered opportunity and became a teacher of English and Latin in a famous boys' school at Cornwall-on-the-Hudson. In "the classic shades" of that academical environment his mind and soul thrived amazingly. He proved his genius as a pedagogue, while he trained the wings of his creative fancy for later flights in the realms of literary accomplishment. As a scholastic administrator no less than as a teacher with the rare gift of imparting knowledge graciously and intelligently, Mr. Wilson proved his quality. So well did his ability, gentle kindness, just discipline and fairness reflect in the characters of the boys who left his classes, that the young educator found himself urged to establish a school of his own. He did so, and the Wilson School, which he, with the able assistance of his two sisters, Miss Emma Wilson and Mrs. Rodolphe Winery, founded on the heights overlooking Fishkill-on-the-Hudson remains today a monument to his name.

A dilettante, rather than a wage-earner in literature, Benjamin Lee Wilson nevertheless accomplished much of worth in the employment of the leisure hours from his avocation as teacher and school administrator. Always a loving student of Shakespeare, Mr. Wilson's lectures on "Macbeth," "Lear," "Hamlet" and other Shakespearean plays gained in their published form a much wider audience if not a more enthusiastic appreciation than was accorded them when delivered by Mr. Wilson before select circles at the meetings of numerous literary clubs in the cities along the Hudson between New York and Albany. Other published critiques, essays and romances made up a total of pen-work which would have been creditable to any writer of his age who had made literature his earning profession rather than that "change of occupation" which counts for relaxation with those of such truly artistic temperament as was Mr. Wilson's.

It is in the useful lives of the hundreds of young men and boys who received their university preparation under the careful and sympathetic tutelage of Mr. Wilson that he would prefer to find such monument as may keep his name in remembrance.

To a friend visiting at his school overlooking the Hudson Mr. Wilson recently declared: "I'm not so greatly concerned about the rapidity of their advancement in book-knowledge as in their character-building; they may be slow—stupid if they must, but I insist that they make of themselves gentlemen."

And with the excellent and graceful example of Benjamin Lee Wilson, teacher, writer and friend ever before them, how indeed could they help so becoming?

The funeral services for the late Benjamin Lee Wilson will take place Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kibler, Granville street, the Rev. L. P. Franklin of Trinity church and the Rev. F. E. Vernon of the First Presbyterian church officiating. Friends are invited to attend.

Charles Taylor, aged 31 years, died at his home in Urbana Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, death resulting from organic heart trouble. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lulu Taylor, and his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Carson Taylor; three brothers, George, Sam and William, and three sisters, Mrs. D. J. Crowley, Mrs. D. C. Burch and Miss Sarah Taylor of this city.

Mr. Taylor was by trade a cigar maker and until four years ago made his home in Newark. By his strength of character Mr. Taylor won a large number of friends by whom he was held in the highest esteem.

The funeral services will be held at the home of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carson Taylor 27 1-2 Maholin street, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. C. J. Dillin officiating. Interment in Cedar Hill cemetery.

Frank Egan, of Johnston, aged 50 years, died Saturday morning after a year's illness with inflammatory rheumatism. Mr. Egan was a son of Patrick Egan and was born in Ferry county. He has resided in Johnston for the greater part of his life and has been engaged in farming. He is survived by his wife, two daughters and a son and by one sister and three brothers, one of whom, T. J. Egan, resides on Buckingham street in this city.

The funeral will be held Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock at St. Francis de Sales church, Rev. Father Von Ville of Johnston officiating.

T. J. Wright, Granville, June 24.—T. J. Wright, an old and well known resident of Granville, who was known by all his friends as Deacon Wright, died at his home on College street Saturday morning at 7:30 o'clock. The deceased had been ailing for some time suffering with heart trouble, to which he was subject, and this, complicated with a severe attack of the grip, was the immediate cause of his death. Deacon Wright was probably one of the best known men in Granville and was a great friend of the children. He was aged about 79 years and had been married twice. Three children by his first wife survive, together with his wife. The children are E. E. Wright, the firm of Wright & Wright of this place; Mrs. Frenus Jones and George Jones of Centerville.

The funeral will be held Monday afternoon, the funeral services being conducted at the home. Interment in Maple Grove cemetery.

WE desire to thank our friends and neighbors for their kindness during the late illness and death of our dear husband and father, also for the beautiful floral offerings and Rev. Dr. Thomas for beautiful remarks which he made. Mrs. J. W. Barrett and children, and brother, Mr. John Barrett.

WE wish to thank our friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy during the illness and death of our husband and father, Mrs. David Hohl and Family.
